Thursday 2nd April 2020

Good morning everyone,

I hope you are all well. I'm guessing that yesterday's challenge was a tough one as I haven't received any answers yet. Maybe I will over the next few days.

Tomorrow afternoon at 1.30pm I am going to try something crazy. Earlier in the week I set you a challenge of writing a new verse for John Lennon's 'Imagine'. I've had some lovely responses back. I have had to tweak a couple of them so that they fit with the timing of the song. Tomorrow afternoon I will be running a Zoom conference, I'll send you the code tomorrow via email. I am going to dust my guitar off and my plan is that we all sing the original version together and then try to add a few new verses into it. I have no idea how this will work and it could be a total disaster but at least we can have fun trying.

Today I'd like you to listen to the song again so that you get familiar with it and it may also be a good idea to print the lyrics off. (I've copied and pasted them for you below).

Today's challenge is another maths one, and it is going to use our chess board from last week.

The question sounds simple but it might not be quite as straight forward as it sounds!
How many squares are there on a chess board?

See you all soon, take care.

Mr Dyson

"Imagine"

(from "Imagine: John Lennon" soundtrack)

Imagine there's no heaven
It's easy if you try
No hell below us
Above us only sky
Imagine all the people
Living for today... Aha-ah...

Imagine there's no countries
It isn't hard to do
Nothing to kill or die for
And no religion, too
Imagine all the people
Living life in peace... You...

You may say I'm a dreamer
But I'm not the only one
I hope someday you'll join us
And the world will be as one

Imagine no possessions
I wonder if you can
No need for greed or hunger
A brotherhood of man
Imagine all the people
Sharing all the world... You...

You may say I'm a dreamer
But I'm not the only one
I hope someday you'll join us
And the world will live as one
