Friday 24th April 2020,

Good morning everyone,

It's Friday and the sun is shining. I hope you have all had a good week. Thank you to all of you who have had a go at some/all of my daily challenges; I love looking at your work. Although we are not all together at the moment it is lovely to be keeping in touch with you. If you've sent me an email and I haven't responded yet I promise I will, I received quite a lot yesterday, which is great.

Today is the last day of the 26/2.6 challenge. As you know, this Sunday would have been the London Marathon, a challenge that thousands of people take on each year to raise money for charities. I took part in this 20 years ago and it was one of the most memorable days of my life, a fantastic experience. In case you don't recognise me I'm the one who looks very out of breath, not the one who looks as fresh as a daisy! This was taken after 24 miles.

Today's challenge is based on London and 26. I would like you all to research 13 landmarks in London and then to write 13 sentences to tell me an interesting fact about each.

I look forward to seeing your work.

Have a good weekend everyone, stay safe.

Mr Dyson
